Become the student you’ve always wanted to be!
More than just a study-skills course, 1259 focuses on approaches that enable students to better learn, understand and retain what is being taught—and to better manage time and life—in the college environment. The course teaches these skills within the context of four strategies-for-achievement: Taking Reasonable Risk, Taking Responsibility for Outcomes, Searching the Environment, and Using Feedback. Students apply these strategies to various academic and motivation contexts, such preparing for exams and overcoming procrastination.

ESEPSY 1359: Technology-Enhanced Learning Strategies (3 credits)
Class #: 12095
Room: See SIS
Days/Time: Mondays 2:15PM – 5:00PM
Instructor contact: Staff

Write for a web audience, edit collaboratively, develop engaging presentations, and gain the skills to succeed in college and your career!
In this seven-week course, students will develop strategies for effective college learning with special attention to the use of technology in individual and collaborative projects. Students will equip themselves with the digital search strategies of an advanced researcher, learn best practices for creating and managing their digital identities, develop the skills to collaborate on an efficient and productive team, hear from professionals using technology-enhanced strategies in their fields, and use reason and logic to develop compelling arguments communicated in digital forms.
